AMERICAN DISPATCHES.

THE LOUISIANA LOTTERY MUST STOP BUSINESS.

The Republican Papers Coming Out Against It—The First National Bank of The Dalles, Oregon, Robbed of $10,000—Election in Rio de Janeiro.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—John Dillon, M.P., and Wm. O'Brien were arrested to-day for their recent utterances in Ireland. The former was taken into custody at his residence, near Dublin, and immediately escorted to the rail way station, where he was placed on a special train en route to Tipperary. He was accompanied by a large military escort. O'Brien was taken into custody at Glengarff, and conveyed to Cork. Warrants of arrest for Patrick O'Brien, Thomas J. Condor and David Henry, and the Rev. David Humphreys, of Tipperary, have been issued.

He Feels Safe.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—General Butler said regarding the suit brought by E. W. Darling, of New York, to recover $1,000 on account of his alleged failure to turn over proceeds of certain sales on New Mexican lands:

"Yes, it is true that I have been sued, but the case has been pending for two months, and is now before the United States circuit court. This suit is simply brought to prevent the sale of land. I don't expect to lose it."

The Lottery Must Go.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—The anti-lottery league of Louisiana fired salutes on Wednesday at New Orleans, Baton Rouge and other points, over the passage of the anti-lottery bill by Congress. There has been a decided change in the attitude of Republicans on the question. When the question of extending the franchise of the lottery company was before the last legislature, every Republican member of that body voted for its extension, but to-day, in consequence of the attitude of the President and Congress, Republican newspapers in the state, with one exception, are against the lottery. A new anti-lottery Republican newspaper, the New Republican, has been established in New Orleans.

Bank Robbery.

PORTLAND, Sept. 18.—The First National bank of The Dalles, Oregon, was robbed last night of stocks, bonds and money to an amount of over $10,000. the burglars had evidently been at work some time, as the entrance to the vault was gained by tunnelling under the floor. No clue to the robbers has been secured as yet. The matter is being kept very quiet and no particulars can be obtained to-night. Every avenue of escape is being guarded and the police have picked up several suspicious characters. No positive evidence has been shown against any of them yet.

Result of Old Styled Roads.

PORTLAND, Sept. 18.—To-day Alphonso Precechtel, a young car driver on the First street line, met with a shocking accident. The horse shied at a piece of paper on the track and made a lunge. The driver was pulled from the platform and fell in front of the car. The wheels passed partially over him, crushing one leg and arm and cutting fearful gashes in his head. He was moved to the hospital. The shock to his system was so great that recovery is deemed very doubtful.

Accident to a Circus Man.

DENVER, Sept. 17.—Wallace & Co.'s circus, which exhibited here last week, left Trinidad Saturday for Clarendon, Texas. Near Barclay a number of cars jumped the track, delaying the train so much that the circus management had to cancel their date at Clarendon. A hostler sitting on top of a cage, his legs dangling down, attracted the attention of a lion. The beast reached one of his paws through the bars, fixed his nails in the flesh near the knee, and before the poor fellow could be released it was necessary to pry the beast's jaws open with an iron bar.

Free Brazil Goes Republican.

RIO JANIERO, Sept. 17.—Elections for members of the constituent assembly passed off quietly. Among the candidates returned are Ministers Bucayra, Glycerio and Vanderpoola, and ex-Ministers Ladario and Sanclivendel. The Republican press congratulates the government upon the result.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Charles R. Flint has received the following cable from Rio Janiero: The election passed off in perfect order, and the results show the country to be overwhelmingly in favor of the new order of things. There are no Monarchists and hardly any Clericalists elected.

Bankers Suspend.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 16.—The suspension of R. Gardner, Chase & Co., bankers and brokers, is announced.

INFAMOUS TRAFFIC.

A Seattle Loafer Tries to Sell a Young Girl at Tacoma.

TACOMA, Sept. 18.—Last night some of the Opera alley demimondes caused the arrest of one William Kelley. He was accused of bringing a virtuous young girl of 18 years to the city, and endeavoring to imprison her within the walls of a den of infamy, where she would be forced to ways of vice and ruin. The girl, who gave her name as Millie Rhodes, but who registered at the Grand Central Hotel as Hattie Lattimer, told a plausible story of how Kelley had won her affections in Seattle, and then taken advantage of her confidence and deceived her into going where she would not have ventured for her life if she had suspected his designs. The officer who made the arrests believed her story, and found respectable lodgings for her, but during the day another phase of the story came to light.

Deputy United States Marshal Grenell arrested in Puyallup this morning May Sheridan, a keeper of a house of ill-fame, on the charge of selling liquors in her dive without a license. She was brought to Tacoma for trial before United States Commissioner Clifford this evening.

The woman after arriving here said that Kelley and the girl that were arrested in Opera alley had lived in Puyallup, and the girl had lived in her house and had stolen some jewelry on Saturday night and left.

Miss Rhodes alias Lattimer does not now pretend to conceal the fact that she has been leading the kind of life that her erring sisters of Opera alley pretended to desire to save her from. Kelley got out of jail last night through an opening supposed to be sawed by some railroad man to relieve a comrade.

FROM THE ORIENT.

An Angry Crowd Destroys a Railway—Cholera in Japan.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18—The steamer City of Rio de Janeiro arrived from Hongkong and Yokohama this morning bringing the following advices: There have been more floods in northern China. An angry crowd thinking the railway embankment increased the height of water in certain districts broke the embankments, and the water rushed in destroying the line. A long stretch of about ten miles of country around Tientsin and Peking is flooded. No lives have been lost.

Fire at Sanjoimachi, Japan, August 21st, burned 176 houses and caused the death of seven persons.

Cholera is still raging in Japan. Up to August 25th there has been over 10,000 cases and 5,000 deaths.

THE COLORED TRUST BROKEN.

A Strong Combination of Capital Melts Away Rapidly.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The celebrated "colored trust" is broken. It was $600,000 strong on July 4, and was flat broke on September 15. In just one month and a half the sum named was dumped into the coffers of the bookmakers at Monmouth Park and Sheepshead Bay by a select coterie of six colored men, who are famous as horsemen wherever running horses are bred and raced. The colored trust was formed by Billy Walker, C. A. Jordan, John Y. Thomson, Paton Clay, Joe. Carter, and Tom Monnell. They owned a stable of the best bred horses on the turf, among them being Ruperta, Frontenac, Pearl Set, Foxmead and Silver Prince.

The history of the colored trust dates from August 20, 1889. It was the opening day at Morris Park, and 20,000 people were present. There were ninety bookmakers at the ring, with rolls amounting to $360,000. The money turned into the boxes by the people $250,000 more, and the trust determined to get as much of this as possible on their capital of $500. That night they counted $42,000 as the result of their day's sport, not counting the stake won by Ruperta, which was $3,515, or the sweepstake won by Frontenac, which was about $1,100. They then secured the co-operation of a clever white man, who placed their money and his own, and their winnings mounted up until this disastrous season. There are no victories for the trust now. They have but few horses left, and these will soon be sold. The money will probably be played against books to give the combine a fresh start.

HE WAS A PASTOR.

Which Makes All the Difference Between a Mock and a Real Marriage.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—A story of a marriage for fun which turned out to be a legal marriage, comes from Keyport, N. J. The time is put about ten days ago; the scene near Prospect Grove, where it is said about fifty young people, who were boarding at the Keyport summer boarding houses and hotels, were holding a picnic. The comedy, however, took place apart from the company, only two persons being present besides the three persons absolutely necessary to the wedding. The names of these two are not given. The names of the alleged bride and bridegroom are reported as Miss Emily Duncan of Dayton, Ohio, and Mr. Edward Haughton of Vincentress, Ind. Both have gone to the respective homes. It is alleged that one of the picnicers, a clerical looking young man, performed the ceremony, and that afterwards, to the surprise of the couple, he drew out a card on which was printed "Joseph Hemperfield, Pastor of United Brethren Church Kansas City." No explanation of his conduct is reported. He also has left Keyport.

A CRAZY ACT.

Would Rather Kill His Son Than See Him Wed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Henry Caswell attempted to kill his son on Wednesday night while the latter was about to be married to Miss Mary Deely in the Roman Catholic church, Jersey City. The bridal couple were standing before the altar and Rev. Father Sheehan was in the act of performing the ceremony, when Caswell, who had gone into the church without being seen, jumped up in an excited manner and pointing a pistol at his son, deliberately fired. The bullet failed to hit the young man and lodged in the wall. As Caswell was about to fire a second shot, Father Sheehan sprang toward him and seizing his arm managed to disarm him after a struggle. The priest's hands were severely scratched. There was a large number of persons present. A great excitement prevailed. The bride fainted and was taken charge of by some of her female friends. During the excitement Caswell, senior, made his escape from the church, and had not been arrested up to midnight. His reason for the attempted assassination of his son that he did not want Miss Deely as a daughter-in-law.

A Severe Attack.

I have never felt better in my life than since I used Burdock Blood Bitters. I had a severe billious attack. I could not eat for days and was unable to walk. One bottle cured me. I recommend this use B. B. B. JOHN M. RICHARDS, Fara, Ont.

THEY TALK TOO FREELY.

DILLON AND O'BRIEN ARRESTED IN IRELAND.

Summonses Issued for Others Who Took Part in a Meeting—An Early Session of Parliament Talked of—A Reporter in Hot Water, etc.

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—Richard O'Brien who is charged with sending out the report that Prince George of Wales had been mixed up in a street fight, appeared this morning before Judge Desnoyers, and pleaded not guilty. He was released on bail giving bonds in the sum of $300, himself, with two sureties of $500 each. He has retained the services of the two leading criminal lawyers, and will contest the case. He says that he got his information from what he considered a good source, but thinks that he was the victim of a practical joke. The feeling against him is very strong and the prosecution intends to resort th extreme measures.

To Hide Their Theft.

MADRID, Sept. 18.—Authorities now believe that the fire in the Alhambra was started by thieves in order to screen the theft they committed.

A Truce Agreed To.

MELBOURNE, Sept. 18.—Stevedores have decided to boycott out-going steamers loaded by non-union men. The Mayor of Sydney having offered to act as mediator between workmen and employers, the labor congress has consented to refrain from fresh aggressive steps for forty-six hours.

Cholera Raging.

MADRID, Sept. 18.—The hot weather has increased the number of victims in Toledo and Valencia, and caused the appearance of the disease in many villages. In Alhacia, Alionte, Castellon Delaplana, Tarratonia and Toledo the epidemic is attacking the upper classes. Most of the victims are women and children.

The Name of Christ Creates Disorder.

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—At the socialist meeting last night Herr Vogtherer, one of the municipal officers, demanded that the socialists secede from the national church. During the discussion the mention of Christ caused great disorder. The meeting was dispersed by the police.

Bakers Troubles.

CORK, Sept. 18.—The striking bakers have become violent. Their pickets have been hooting and molesting persons who made their purchases at the stores. In some cases bread was stolen from them. There has been several arrests.

Hard on the Priests.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 18.—Another priest was shot and severely wounded in the Armenia cathedral at Koumkapon on Saturday, his assailant exclaiming, "This is what happens to informers."

A Pro-Slavery Proclamation.

ZANZIBAR, Sept. 18.—The slavery proclamation has been signed by the German commanders of the respective stations. The broker's houses are now full of slaves, and having been established under German license, which permits the recovery of runaways, the proclamation will lead to much kidnapping of free natives. The news of the proclamation is spreading over the whole coast. The traffic has revived to an extent unknown in thirty years.

AN EARLY SESSION.

Rumor That the Dominion Parliament will Meet in December.

Special to the TIMES.]

OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—A prominent member of parliament who does not wish his name given as the authority, says that Speaker Ouimet has got instructions to keep himself in readiness for meeting parliament early in December.

OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—An immense find of nickel has been discovered 35 miles west of Sudbury at Straight lake. Over 1200 acres are owned by Toronto capitalists. The vein extends through it. The find is causing a great sensation in the district.

NAVAL NOTES.

Why the Swiftsure Was Withdrawn—The Maipomene Coming.

The Swiftsure, battleship, late flagship on the Pacific station, which is expected to arrive at Plymouth this week, was commissioned at Devonport on 24th April, 1888. This is an unusually short commission for the Pacific, and is due to the fact that their lordships considered it necessary to send the War spite to strengthen the fleet in those waters.

The late commander-in-chief in the Pacific, Admiral Heneage, is an officer about whom many amusing anecdotes are told, most of the stories hinging upon his well-known peculiarities in regard to officers' dress. Admiral Heneage is not one of those men who were born too late, for in these days of constant changes in the uniform his advice must be invaluable, and he should certainly be asked to sit upon the committee which is cogitating what alterations to effect next.

The Triumph, second-class battleship and flagship at Queenstown, formerly on the Pacific station, was docked Saturday. The bottom of this vessel was so foul as to necessitate the mussels, barnacles, etc., being chipped off with chisels, and the smell caused by those marine deposits was so offensive that the bottom of the dock had to be flooded. Under these circumstances it is scarcely to be wondered at that the Triumph's speed was reduced to less than eight knots during the manœuvres, though her ordinary full speed is said to be over twelve knots.

The Tyne, troop and storeship, Commander W. Goodridge, is under orders to leave Chatham on the 20th September, for Bombay, via Suez Canal, taking out the relief crew for the Garnet on the East Indian station. She will then relieve the Espiegle on the Pacific station.

The Melpomene, 6, Captain A. A. C. Petit, arrived at Bahia August the 25th to relieve the Amphion on the Pacific station. She is a twin screw steamer of the second class, 2960 tons and 9000 horse power. She was fitted out for service on this coast and went into commission therefor on June 17th of this year. Her official staff is composed of Captain Alfred A. A. C. Petit, whose exploits in the Arctic are matters of history; lieutenants, Archibald P. Stoddart, Edmund H. Davenport, Henry I. W. Neville, Ernest C. Hardy; staff-surgeon, Alfred Patterson; paymaster, David J. Thomson; assistant paymaster, Wm. K. Stephens; engineer, Walter J. Graham; assistant engineers, Peter T. Crichton and William A. Wilson; gunner, Wm. J. Crothers. She will reach here about the end of September.

Paymaster C. Rasworthy of the Champion has been advanced to the rank of staff paymaster in the fleet.

Surgeon Robt. MacIver has been appointed to the Daphne.

A GAP TO BE FILLED.

The Vacant Lot on Yates Street Near Broad, to be Built Upon.

The contract for a new block which is to be built for the B. C. L. & I. Co., Ltd., was signed yesterday, Mr. M. Humber being the contractor. The cost of the building which is to be erected on Yates street, just east of Broad, opposite the Deluge engine house, will be $30,000. The plans which have been got out by Mr. John Teague, architect, show in elevation a three story brick structure, in the Italian style of architecture, the doorways and windows to be finished in granite. A tower, the top of which will be about a hundred feet from the sidewalk, will ornament the front, and be a prominent landmark.

The plans of the ground floor show restaurant and store 63 by 25 feet, and a wide staircase to the upper stories back of the main stores will be a 12 foot court laid in asphalt. Back of this will be another building which will be fitted up for kitchen, storeroom, etc. The whole area of both buildings, which are practically one, will be 120 feet by 64 feet.

The upper stories will be fitted up with bedrooms and family suites, with lavatories and bathrooms. A stairway and a power passenger elevator will be the means of communication with the upper floors. The building will be steam heated throughout, and illuminated with the electric light. Work on the new block will be gone on with at once, and rapidly pushed to completion, and when finished the structure will be second to none in the city.

NEARLY COMPLETED.

Excavations for the Canada Western Nearing Completion.

A few more blasts and Mr. Haggerty will have finished his part of the contract for excavating for the Canada Western Hotel. He started work early in May and has been at work ever since taking out an immense amount of rock. A large staff of men have been kept going, and undoubtedly one of the biggest blasting contracts ever undertaken in Victoria is about to be completed. The excavation will not be finished however, when Mr. Haggerty is through, for another big lump has yet to be taken out. The company will call for tenders for this latter work shortly, and it will undoubtedly be another three months before the ground is ready to be built upon. The hotel company picked out a pretty expensive building block when they bought the one they are about to build upon, but a better situation could hardly have been found. A splendid cellar, one of the first considerations in a first class hotel, will be had, and as for drainage that necessity will be afforded with very little expense. A large amount of the stone taken out by Mr. Haggerty is being kept near by and will very likely be used in the foundation as better material would be hard to get.

It is hardly likely that the hotel will be ready for use when the next tourist season commences, but if it is not, Victoria is nevertheless certain that she is to have a hotel second to none north of Portland.

THE BY-LAWS.

Sewerage at Last Assured—Both By-Laws Carried.

Less interest was taken in the by-laws providing (1) for a loan of $300,000 for sewerage purposes, and (2) authorizing the council to sell the property on Yates street, known as the Deluge engine house, than their importance merited. Strange to say, an opposition to the sewerage scheme developed in several quarters where least expected, and a few prominent citizens, like Messrs. Higgins and Fell, were heard to speak in opposition to an improvement of which very recently they were eloquent advocates. The good sense of the ratepayers, however, has prevailed and the by-law has been carried by a substantial majority. The following is the vote:

SEWERAGE BY-LAW.

	For.	Against.
James Bay Ward	142	43

LIAS' WONDERFUL COLT.

The Story of the Trials of an Old Horse Told by a Maine Man.

"I remember the first time that I saw Elias Perkins," said the man from Maine to the New York Tribune. "He was sitting on a fence-rail, whittling a stick. The next time I saw him he was perched on the same rail, and the stick in his left hand seemed to be the same one as before. I saw him many times that summer, and he always sat on the fence, and always whittled.

"He was one of those pieces of hickory that one meets in my State. He was over sixty years old, but during the winter he could swing an axe with any man in the woods. He never worked in the summer. He had picked up a deal of knowledge somewhere, and his brain was like an iron box, for he never forgot anything which he once got into his head. He would discuss 'algebree, trigonometree and the classics,' as he expressed it, with equal willingness, 'but,' he would add, 'I prefer the old poets; they get down to business without many flourishes.' I have heard him quote Homer by the hundred lines without a break, his long arm making ungainly gestures, and his whitened head bowing with a solemn dignity at the end of each verse. In geometry he would rattle away at any thing, winding up with an impressive 'quad erat demonstrandum.'

"'Lias, every body called him, and he was often called upon to act as the final referee in cases of dispute, for it was admitted in that part of the country that 'Lias knew every thing. But 'Lias was destined to show his weakness late in life, and the result of it was more severe than years of chopping at pines in the coldest Maine weather.

"It was the second summer of my acquaintance with him that I found him one day, as usual, on the fence, but his knife was not at work as usual on a piece of wood. He was pegging away in an absent-minded fashion at the rail itself.

"'I went into the village day before yesterday,' said Elias, looking up with a weary look in his faded blue eyes, 'and I bought a colt. I'm going to raise him, and have the finest horse in this township.'

"'Well, Elias,' I said, what are you going to do with him? What do you need of a horse?'

"'I just want to raise him,' he answered. 'But he's a tough one to handle. I think that's why I want to raise him.'

"Two days afterward, when I saw him again, both his knife and whittling stick were gone.

"'How's the colt, Elias?' I asked.

"'He got up in the hills yesterday, and I was out looking for him all night. He's back now.' The old man showed signs of fatigue.

"Perhaps there never was a colt more vicious than Elias'. I heard of the animal's capers every day, and it kept Elias continually busy looking after his new pet. But one day I found him back in his old position, looking like himself.

"'Where's the colt to-day?' I asked.

"'He's lost,' said Elias, with satisfaction, and he quoted some verses to show his submission to fate.

"In three days Elias had gone back to his old friends, the knife and the stick. But on the morning of the fourth day when he got up he found his colt standing at the door of his little house. Henceforth troubles came thick and fast upon the old backwoodsman. His back began to bend over, and nothing could induce him to talk of the old poets! The old man went to pieces rapidly, but he would not give up the colt. This condition of affairs continued until it was difficult for Elias to drag himself around. One night the vicious colt, while jumping a fence, caught one of its legs and broke it. Some one took a rifle and ended the brute's suffering. When I heard of this the next day I called on Elias. He was lying on his bed, with his eyes closed, but there was a supreme look of rest on the yellow face, and a smile of content about the thin lines at the corner of the mouth.

"'Elias,' I said, 'it was too bad about the colt.'

"'Yes,' said the old man, with a smile. 'I think I was teaching him a little decency. It was too bad to be disappointed.'

"Elias got out again in a few weeks, but he was never able to go back to the woods. He never ceased to tell, however, how he was conquering his colt when the animal was killed. And as time went on the virtues of the brute seemed to grow on Elias, for such a patient, docile, intelligent and wonderful colt as the one described by Elias two years afterward, as he sat on the old fence one evening, man never before heard praised."

A Conscience-Stricken Man.

A sad-eyed man walked into a store in Beloit the other day, says the Janesville Gazette, and, planking down a $10 note, tearfully said: "Just four years ago to-day I stole a $4 pair of shoes from your store. The matter has been preying on my mind, but my pride prevented me from confessing. I can stand it no longer. Take your pay out of this $10 bill." The merchant, of course, was delighted to meet such a penitent, contrite soul, and gave the man $6 and he departed with a light heart. The $10 bill was a very finely-executed counterfeit. The next conscience-stricken individual that presents himself at that store will be thrown into the river with neatness and dispatch.

Mice in Her Hair.

Mrs. Madison, a handsome young married woman, said to a San Francisco Examiner man: "One of the strangest things happened a few nights ago. My husband has been very sick, you know, and I have been sitting up with him, so I sleep like a top when my eyes close. Now, there are those two white mice, the loveliest things in the world, but what do you think? The other night they actually chewed a hole in the top of my tidy cap while I was resting, gnawed my hair, which you can see is abundant, and made a splendid nest right on the top of my head. How they did it without awakening me I can't explain, but my husband, sick as he is, suggests that I wear some sort of a helmet at night."

SMUT IN GRAIN.

A Danish Professor's Experiments in Destroying It.

A Danish experimenter, Prof. Jensen, has made extensive tests of the efficacy of hot water in killing off the spores of smut adhering to various kinds of grains. The conclusion of his experiments is, says the Country Gentleman, that it is only necessary to dip the seed to be sown in water heated to the temperature of 132 degrees Fahrenheit. It is best, however, to dip the grain first into a vessel with the water at 110 degrees, and from that into the second vessel with the water heated to 132 degrees. If there is only a small quantity of grain to be treated, the dipping can be done upon a kitchen stove in kettles of the ordinary sort, a thermometer being employed to denote the temperatures. The grain is placed in a sack, through the fabric of which water easily passes, and the whole dipped into the first kettle with the water at 110 degrees. After remaining here for a few minutes the sack of grain should be removed and immersed in the hotter water of vessel No. 2. The only point to be thought of in this connection is the movement of the sack sufficiently that the hot water may penetrate between the grains and reach the whole surface of all the contents of the bag. After a few repeated immersions by lifting and lowering the bag it is removed, and the grain plunged into cold water. From the cold water the grain should be spread out to dry, after which it is ready for sowing.

Should there be a large quantity to treat, it may be best to have two large vats or kettles holding a barrel or more of water each, when grain sacks can be used for the dipping. Care should be taken that the temperature of the hotter water be always between 130 degrees and 135 degrees F. The principal use of the first vessel is to prevent a considerable cooling of the hotter water that would be caused by plunging the dry, cool grain directly into it. This treatment need not be delayed until sowing time, but can be given any day, even in the comparative leisure of the early spring before the hurry of seeding time arrives.

The following are Prof. Kellerman's conclusions from a large number of field tests of various remedies for smut: 1. Treatment of the seed with hot water by the Jensen method completely prevented the smut in every case, and improved rather than diminished the germinating power of the seed and the vigor of the plants. 2. Treatment with a solution of copper sulphate (blue vitriol or blue stone) four ounces to one gallon of water for eighteen hours, prevented the smut but greatly injured the seed.

CRATE FOR SHIPPING PIGS.

Shippers Can Get a Hint from This.

The man who receives stock in crates does not care to pay express on useless lumber, yet he wishes to have the crate strong enough to hold his purchase safely until it reaches his farm. Some woods, like poplar, basswood and elm, are both light and tough and can be used thinner than pine, but if pine is thoroughly dried and planed on both sides a neat, light crate can be made which will hold pigs or sheep securely. A crate for a two-hundred-pound pig must be four feet long, thirteen or fourteen inches wide and from twenty-four to twenty-eight inches high.

When sent by freight it should have a feeding-box in front, and be nailed together with wire nails properly clinched.

SHIPPING CRATE FOR PIGS.

A six-inch board may form the lowest strip on each side, then a four-inch, then two three-inch strips. The sides are nailed up, then the bottom board is sawed out of a proper length to admit the strips at the front, and back of the sides, and securely nailed to the lowest boards of the sides.

The slats are nailed across the front and top, four for each place, then a single board slipped in between two strips at the back end, making a door for getting the pig in and out. Two wire nails hold this board in place. The weight is from thirty-five to forty-five pounds, and will hold a large pig, going hundreds of miles.

A Cheap Feed.

Fourteen different rations or combinations of food have been used in feeding milch cows at the Massachusetts experiment station during the past four years. The tests have been very accurate. The cost of the rations is based on corn meal at $22.75 per ton, wheat bran at $21, hay at $15 and corn stover at $5 per ton. The cheapest feed consisted of 3¼ pounds each of corn meal and wheat bran, 5 pounds of hay and 12½ pounds of well-cured corn stover, the total cost being a fraction over 14 cents per head daily. This food contained manurial elements worth 6 cents, so that its actual net cost was only a fraction over 7½ cents per cow daily. The yield of milk averaged nearly as high as when the cows were fed on a more expensive ration. This food contained 1 pound of nitrogenous matter to 7¼ pounds of sugar, starch, etc. The next cheapest feed was made up of 3¼ pounds each of corn meal, wheat bran and gluten meal, with 17½ pounds of well-cured corn stover, costing 15½ cents for each cow daily. The manurial value was about 8 cents, so that the net cost was 7½ cents, for the food for each cow daily. In this case the food contained 1 pound of nitrogenous matter or lean meat substance to 6 pounds of sugar and starch. The yield of milk was almost as satisfactory as when rations costing 20 to 30 cents per head daily were given.

A SANDY soil becomes warm sooner than a heavy soil. While the seeds may germinate and appear earlier on a sandy soil, yet there should not be too much hurry in planting for fear of late frosts.

FARM STOCK.

DAMAGED oats, corn or hay are exceedingly injurious as food for horses or cattle, predisposing them to a variety of diseases.

IT will not do to keep a young and spirited horse standing in the stable too long without work. He must be kept in exercise, even if only turned out on a lot.

PROFITABLE feeding must be steady feeding. An occasional feeding to feasts may do actual harm, and the short rations surely entail loss. Do not cram one day and starve the next.

IT is a mistake to use a check-rein and hard bit to hoist the head of a horse up out of the natural position especially when at work or hauling a load. The suffering it causes the animal is intense.

"FEED more oats this year," advises Rural New Yorker. "There is no reason why oats should not be fed with profit to all kinds of stock, cattle, sheep, pigs and poultry. We do not mean fed exclusively, but fed in combination with other grains and fodders."

BRIGHT oat straw is one of the best fodders we have for horses, and preferable to poor hay at all times. The best way to feed is to run it through a cutter and mix bran and ground oats with it. It should be slightly moistened so as to make the ground feed adhere to it.

THE future development and usefulness of your cows will be greatly influenced by the treatment given them while calves. Oats and clover hay are the best feed for growing stock. They are both very cheap, and it will pay to feed liberally for the next six months.

THE rapid growth of an animal when it is young will be an advantage to it later on in life. The greatest proportionate gain with animals is during the first year. If the young stock is kept in thrifty, growing condition the first two years the greater proportion of work required to secure a profit will have been performed.

IN feeding and fattening hogs it is important to have a lot as near of the same size, weight and quality as possible; it will sell for a better price than a lot of various sizes and weights. If when fatted there are a few small ones, or one of extra size, the lot will sell for more in the average if you take these out and kill for home use or dress for near market, or sell when a shipment is being made of hogs that average with them.

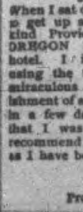
THE CRY OF MILLIONS

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW,

SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.



I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when kind Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

HO! FOR THE NORTH POLE.

Bold Norwegian Mariners Setting up an Arctic Expedition.

"Norway may not be one of the biggest nations of the world, but it is surely not dead, and the chances are that the most sought for prize of modern exploration will be won by a Norwegian."

It was Edward Stormont of Boston who was talking. He returned from Europe a short time ago, after a tour that occupied three years.

"When I was in Christiana last June," said Mr. Stormont, "where I had gone to see whether I could recognize the scenes so often described to me when I was a boy by my grandfather who was a Norwegian, the whole country was agitated over the proposition of Frithjor Nasen to try to get to the North Pole. The national legislature, the storthing, was in session, and Mr. Nansen was advocating his plan in every way. Finally on the last day of June the storthing voted in favor of the expedition, and appropriated the sum of 200,000 kroner, or $53,000 toward the expenses. A vessel of about 170 tons will be built specially for the services and provided with food and fuel for a cruise for five years. The crew will consist of twelve men, who will be chosen with the greatest care and trained to endure hardship as we train an athlete to endure lack of sleep and fatigue when he is to start on a week's walking race.

"It is hoped that the voyage will not take more than two years," continued Mr. Stormont. "The unfortunate Jeannette expedition, instead showing the impossibility of reaching the North Pole, pointed out a possible means of getting there by utilizing a hitherto unknown and unsuspected ocean current. In 1884, just three years after the loss of the Jeannette several articles which had belonged to that vessel, and had been left behind when her crew started on that long and perilous tramp across the ice to Siberia, were picked up on the coast of Greenland, near the town of Julianshaab, where they had drifted on a cake of ice all the way across the Arctic Ocean. Now, they cannot have come in an eastern direction through Smith's Sound, for the only current that reaches Julianshaab comes down around Cape Farewell from the eastern coast of Greenland. It is also practically impossible that they drifted in a westerly direction, for in that case they must have passed Nova Zembla, Franz Josef's land, and Spitzbergen, and the currents at these points have been studied and are well known, and they could not have transported the articles that distance in three years, even if they would have done so ever. There only remains the hypothesis that there is a current that runs across the Arctic ocean in a line that runs nearly direct. In that case nature herself has offered the means of reaching the pole. It is well not to lose sight of the fact that bows found on the coast of Greenland were in 1888 identified with those regularly used by the Esquimaux in the neighborhood of Behring's Strait, Norton Sound, and the mouth of the Yukon River.

"Now, all these facts were thoroughly discussed at the time," said Mr. Stormont in conclusion. "Mr. Mohn, of the Christian Meteorological Institute; Mr. Reitzmann, of the French Geographical Society, and Mr. Jacobsen have written upon them at length, and the only logical conclusion at which they could arrive is that there is the direct trans-oceanic current of which I speak. Mr. Nansen has studied the question in all its aspects, and will set out from Norway in February of 1892. He will proceed around Cape Horn to Behring Sea, reaching there in June; make his way as far as possible till frost sets in, and then go into winter quarters. In the next year he hopes to be able to discover the current which will bear him on to success. Oh, I tell you, these Norsemen are as great today as they were when they settled Iceland, Greenland, and what is now Cape Cod, more than a thousand years ago."

STICKING UP FOR CANADA.

The Way a Toronto Master Printer Talked Out at Boston.

At a recent meeting of the Typotheæ of America at Boston Toronto was well represented. Mr. W. A. Sheppard, manager of The Mail Job Printing Co., discussed the topic "Over the Border" at the big banquet and talked straight out for Canada. Said he:

"The country over the border is not altogether unknown to the people on this side of the border, but I am inclined to think that there is a good deal of ignorance existing here—as well as, I am sorry to say, in our Mother Country—as to the extent of our country and its social, commercial and political condition. If I were to tell you that the area of the Dominion of Canada was larger than that of the United States, some might be inclined to doubt, and would tell me if it was true the greater part of it was covered with ice and snow. But if I were to say further, that the area of cultivable land was as large as that of the United States I might be accused of a little Yankee boasting, but it would, nevertheless be a fact. If I were to say that we had a country almost boundless in its resources of gold, silver, copper, iron, coal and other mineral wealth, with rich fertile soil, vast forests, immense prairies, mighty rivers and lakes, inexhaustible fisheries, manufactures that will compete with any in the world, and to say further, that we had a hardy, industrious and enterprising people, proud of their heritage, and having faith in the future of their country, having the best political institutions and enjoying the greatest amount of civil and religious freedom of any nation under the sun, I might be told I was taking a leaf out of Cousin Jonathan's Fairy Tales, but the statement would be a hard fact all the same. If I were to say that the public school system of Canada was equal if not superior to any on the continent, and that its higher educational institutions ranked amongst the first in the world, I should only be repeating what your best educationists have said again and again. And then if I were to point to you the greatest achievement of modern times—the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, extending from ocean to ocean—built by Canadian money, Canadian energy and Canadian enterprise, in half the time it has taken to build a similar railway in any other part of the world, some of you might say I was given to boasting, but it is nevertheless a recognized fact in railway history. The fact is, when your people come to know something more about our glorious country, we can scarcely wonder at their desire to have a slice of our fair land. And when you see some of our Canadian press playing into the hands of avowed annexationists and holding up such men as Wiman, a professed Canadian, and Butterworth, his boon companion, of your own country, as the would-be emancipators of Canada from commercial slavery, we can hardly find fault with our friend from St. Louis, who last year predicted that in four years the great American eagle would swoop down upon us and take us to his happy hunting grounds. But, gentlemen, we have no inclination to be swooped up. We have our own happy hunting grounds and intend to keep them. But may we not hope that while you are looking at a young nation springing into life alongside your own—a people speaking the same language, breathing the same atmosphere of freedom, coming from the same mother's loins—you will not throw any obstacle in the way of our development, and if you cannot bid us godspeed you will at least give us fair play in the great race for supremacy on this continent.

The speaker was frequently interrupted with cheers, and sat down amidst loud applause.

ANNEXATION IS THE ISSUE.

Canada is Going to Ruin and the People Begin to See It.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—The fact can no longer be disputed that the annexation question is fast becoming a live issue. Leading public men have not hesitated to make mention of the increasing popularity of the movement for closer trade and social relations with the United States. One of the Government organs has come out squarely for separation from England. The Quebec Telegraph says:

"If we are permitted to gauge current events in Canada, we think that annexation to the United States is making great headway among our people. Annexation is coming, and that before long. Sir John Macdonald may preach all kinds of doctrines; he may climb upon John Bull's back and become the last man on earth to accept the platform, but dollars and cents will bring it about. The McKinley Bill is passed by a large majority, and that bill strikes a blow at the commerce of Canada. England, we are told, is ready to give up Canada and Newfoundland if we are England. We are positive that at least this part of the country would be in a thriving condition, if We had America merged into one general confederation.

"A few days ago the stars and stripes were raised over the custom house in Montreal and now they are flying in the grounds of the Toronto exposition. What is to prevent them being raised over the nation at some future period?

"Something must be done, because we cannot stand this tinkering at Ottawa any longer. This country is, in plain words, going to Old Nick, and if at the next general election the Reform party do not become aware of the situation, we will be starved out of existence by the United States tariff. England is neither a mother or friend to us. We have flattered her too much, and now is the time, when one of her grandchildren is here, for us to talk as plainly as possible of the situation.

"If the capitalists of London can buy up the great stock companies of the United States, if they can put one million dollars into the wild plains of that country, if they are afraid to invest a single dollar in British securities, then let us annex so as to secure their aid and hand."

This article has caused a decided sensation here with Government officials. They state that such treasonable and seditious talk should not be overlooked.

AN EPISODE WITH A MORAL.

Vancouver is all of a flutter. We might say, and not miss it much, that Vancouver is mad. Why, it will be asked, is Vancouver in a flutter, why is she mad, and why has one of her organs declared that it proposes to "Hew to the line, let the chips fall where they will?" The why is this: Vancouver has been victimized. For all that Vancouver is a well known city, has been visited for four or five years past by an innumerable caravan of tourists and speculators, it still felt dubious of the length and breadth of its fame, and in an evil moment subsidized a pamphleteer to sing its praises—$500 worth. The pamphleteer, however, for some reason or another, failed to connect. He wrote an admirable treatise on British Columbia but somehow he skipped Vancouver. That such a lapse as this should rouse the ire of the Vancouverites is not at all surprising. Vancouver was entitled to $500 worth of puff, and the delinquent pamphleteer should be called to account. The experience of Vancouver in this little matter points a moral to adorn a tale of neglect of local publishing institutions. Within ourselves we have the brains and the machinery for getting out pamphlets and extra editions of newspapers. The city fathers, however, seem to take no stock in local handiwork of this kind; they prefer to subsidize some itinerate scribe, who in his turn gives his work to foreign publishers. What better opportunity has some penny-a-liner for distributing his productions abroad than have the publishers of this province? The News and the TIMES within a comparatively recent period have published extra editions in which the resources of the Province were made prominent features, and we have good reason to know that copies of these editions found their way to the four corners of the British Empire. With reasonable encouragement from city councils these extra editions could have been made ten times more effective. Larger editions could then have been struck off and the pains taken to see that copies were posted to localities where they would do the most good. But there is no need to discuss the matter. When city councils shall have been victimized a few more times they will perhaps turn their attention to local publishers as the safest vehicle for their advertising the resources of their respective localities.

CUTS BOTH WAYS.

That Mr. FOSTER must have framed his tariff schedule without consulting authority as to how it would work in some of its features is made apparent in the following, which we clip from the Toronto Mail:

"Formerly," says the Mail, "publishers of cheap editions imported stereotyped plates and reprinted their volumes from them. The operation had this merit from an industrial point of view; it gave our numerous printing presses work, and provided a market for Canadian made paper. Not satisfied with the trade as it was being carried on, the Ministers undertook, by raising the duty on stereotyped plates, to force the type-setting as well as well as the printing of the books. The new duty on plates has, however, had the very contrary effect to that looked for. Publishers have been practically prohibited from importing the plates now import in their place the sheets already printed. As a consequence the Canadian labor upon cheap editions has been diminished instead of increased. It had long been urged that the duties upon iron and steel seriously handicapped our shipbuilders. A Clyde-built ship could be imported free of duty; but the materials out of which to construct such a ship had to pay heavy imposts. It followed that the Canadian building a ship out of taxed materials could not compete with the Scotch man-facturer, who had no duty to pay on his materials or upon his finished product. Mr. Foster recognized the unfairness of the condition under which the Canadian builder labored, and endeavored to rectify it by proposing in last year's and in last session's budget to remove the duties on articles of iron and steel, which at the time of their importation for use in the construction of iron and steel ships are of a class not made in Canada, should be admitted duty free. This was on the face of it an important advance. It recognized the bearing of taxation upon industry, and, as it seemed, swept away the unfavorable influence. But it did not go far enough.

The Government itself is advertising for tenders for the construction of a steamer to take the place of the old Sir James Douglas in the waters of British Columbia. The vessel could be built at Owen Sound, but for the duties that are still imposed. To begin with, there would be used in the work of construction 350 tons of coal. The duty of sixty cents a ton handicaps the Canadian builder to the extent of $210. On the forgings for the stem, sternpost, and rudder the tax would be $300. It might be supposed that under last session's tariff amendment these forgings would come in free. But it happens that the forgings for small vessels are made here although the forgings for large vessels are not. It is therefore held that these articles are not of a class "not made in Canada," and that as a consequence they are not under the law free from the regular tax. The steel boiler plate pays $13 per ton, although saw manufacturers get their steel duty free; the tubes pay 15 per cent., and the rivet iron $15 per ton. Some of the articles for which the specifications call are patented, and are obtainable only in England. These, as for example the steam steerer, the English lever clocks, the patent dead lights, and the patent signal lights, would come into Canada free of duty if the ship were built on the Clyde instead of in Canada. Altogether the tariff burdens the Canadian shipbuilder in this particular case by the sum of $3,400 in his attempt to compete with the Scotch yards.

Instances such as these, as a means to the end of enabling Canada to develop within herself certain industries, not only show the fallacy of protection but they establish a case of apparent willful disregard for the laws which govern the development of certain enterprises. It is impossible to force development to supply certain hypothetical demands. The demand must come first. So soon as the demand in Canada for steamships of a certain class attains a point commensurate with the expense of a plant, the plant will develop as a matter of course. In this case, however, we have a duty clapped on to the stern and rudder posts, etc., responsive to certain hypothetical demands. It is assumed that if the ship yards exist the building of ships will follow.

Now ship-building cannot be forced in any such way as that. The demand for ships must come first. No shipbuilder, protect him as much as you may, is going to set up a ship-building plant which is capable of turning out a class of ships superior to the demand. Until there is a demand for a certain class of stern and rudder posts not only will they not be manufactured, but the plant requisite for their manufacture will not be set up, clap on as much protection as you please. The only remedy we see for the present state of things is to make the law so elastic that it can be modified or suspended at any time as exigencies may demand. Nothing is more certain that hard and fast lines of protection are a boomerang.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We have not given the question the study which would warrant an unqualified expression of opinion, but as the effect of a casual glance, we should say that penny ocean postage and cheap Imperial telegraphs, as proposed by J. HENNIKER HEATON, M. P., are matters which should be taken into serious consideration. If cheaper ocean postage is practicable, and if by the Government taking hold of the telegraph system, a cheaper transmission of messages is possible, the people certainly are entitled to these advantages. As to figures showing that cheaper ocean postage is practicable, they were given yesterday, and need not, therefore, be reproduced here. In the matter of telegraphy, however, no figures were given, and as these present a curious state of affairs from an economic standpoint, we give them for the benefit of those who have an interest in such matters. "At present," says Mr. HEATON, "the rates are prohibitive. It costs from 9s. 4d. to 9s. 9d. to telegraph a single word to Australia. To New Zealand the charge is 10s. 6d. a word; to Hongkong, 7s. 1d.; to Singapore, 6s. 5d.; to the Cape, 8s. 11d.; while to some points the charges are 27c. a word. Mr. HEATON also holds that it is absurd to talk about Federation while these hostile tariffs are kept up. On one occasion recently, a message from Australia to England cost the sum of £1,400; another £1,200, while the average cost of each telegraphic message sent in 1885 was £6. £1,000 a day is spent in telegraphing to Australia. Last year the total net value of Indian and trans-Indian messages was £565,000; that is, £360,000 for Australasian messages, and £200,000 for purely Indian and Eastern messages.

Mr. HEATON proposes that the government shall buy up the cables (as they did the cables to the continent last year); and if the cable companies will not sell at a reasonable price, then for the Government to construct cables of their own.

He also proposes a cheap land line from Calais to Calcutta. The rate from London to the German-Russian frontier is about 2d., and through Russia to the Turkish, Persian, or Afghan frontier, 3d. more. The short gap from the Russian terminus, Penjdeh, to the Indian, Chaman, should at once be filled up via Herat.

Another land line should be laid from Calcutta or Chittagong, via the Malay Peninsula, to Singapore, whence a cable should complete our communication with Australia.

The rates should then be at the outside 6d. a word to India, and 1s. a word to Australasia.

The revenues of the Queen's dominions amount to £200,000,000, of which the British Isles raise only £90,000,000. Our manufacturers sell every year to the colonies goods to the value of £91,500,000, and we import colonial produce to the annual value of £87,000,000. In 1889 our foreign and colonial trade increased £42,500,000, of which £6,350,000 represents increased exports to Australia alone.

It would be possible, for the sums now paid in subsidising the mail packet companies, to telegraph the whole of our correspondence with the colonies, gratis, with a saving of six weeks to Australasia.

Finally Mr. HEATON appeals to public opinion, to the hundreds of millions who own our gracious Sovereign's sway, and asks them to make intercourse between their sundered coasts as easy as speech, as free as air, and to no longer tolerate this excessive taxation on the expression of their fraternal sympathies, and on the growth of their trade.

Briefly this Mr. HEATON's argument, and we see no reason why it should not go into effect, unless it be that the Government is more concerned for the dividends of captal than it has for the pockets of the people.

REV. P. McF. MACLEOD AND POLITICS.

TO THE EDITOR:—Mr. Macleod at the Presbytery at New Westminster, said that the members of his church who were politically opposed to the Hon. John Robson were making a handle of Mr. Muir's case to ruin him (Robson) politically. At the same time he held in his hand a document issued by Mr. Robson's Government, which he endeavored to use as evidence against Mr. Muir. He said that the words ascribed to Mr. Robson by Mr. Muir were not to be found in the evidence of Mr. Robson, as printed in the said document, and, he added, of course we must believe the official document. Mr. Muir had also complained of the words not being in the document. Now let as take a look into this official document which the faithful must believe. It was the report of the parliamentary school committee. What do we find? 1. On page 4 a telegram which contains 11 words not to be found in the original. 2. On page 105 a row of stars is put in place of D. Wilson's (Inspector of Schools) filthy language—too filthy to be printed. 3. On page 118 we find this—Mr. Muir, recalled, put in a statement of the following testimonials—and not one of the testimonials is printed. 4. On page 119 we find this—statement under oath handed in by Mr. J. N. Muir—and not one word of the statement was printed.

5. On page ci. Mr. Pope says: I had no communication with Miss Ramsay, except the letter sent into committee, and there is not one letter from Miss Ramsay published and not one from Mr. Pope to Miss Ramsay.

6. On page cvi. Mr. Pope says again: The correspondence is an exact statement of what occurred between the department and Miss Ramsay, and not one word of correspondence between Miss Ramsay and the department is printed, except a letter from D. Wilson to Miss Ramsay, which was squeezed in after a hard fight, and appears on page cvix., this was in reply to one from her.

Yet the reverend gentleman said to the Presbytery, they must accept that document as true. Possibly in a few more weeks in his political innocence he will treat his congregation to an editorial from the Colonist instead of a sermon, much in the same way as he tried to introduce this document into the Presbytery as evidence against Mr. Muir although by it he proved one half of his complaint. Racing With Wolves.

Many a thrilling tale has been told by travellers of a race with wolves across the frozen steppes of Russia. Sometimes only the picked bones of the hapless traveller are found to tell the tale. In our own country thousands are engaged in a life-and-death race against the wolf consumption. The best weapons with which to fight the foe, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This renowned remedy has cured myriads of cases when all other medicines and doctors had failed. It is the greatest blood purifier and restorer of strength known to the world. For all forms of scrofulous affections (and consumption is one of them), it is unequaled as a remedy.

HE SOLD HIS TEETH.

Having Nothing to Eat They Were of No Use to Their Owner.

A South street pawnbroker was amazed on Saturday when a poorly-dressed man walked in and, putting his right hand to his mouth, drew forth a nice-looking set of false teeth, which he laid on the counter, says the Philadelphia North American.

"Well, what is it?" gasped the pawnbroker, when he recovered his breath.

"What can I get on 'em?" said the man, carelessly nodding toward the teeth.

"What! on your teeth?"

"Yes, on my teeth."

"Why, man, you won't be able to eat."

"I know that."

"You do, eh?"

"Yes, perfectly. I can't get any thing to eat. Consequently my teeth are of no use to me. 'Tis true I might keep them for ornamental purposes, but being a poor man I can't afford that. Then, again, when I get angry I might indicate that such was the fact by 'showing my teeth,' but alas! that doesn't pay, either."

As the shades of night began to fall the two, the pawnbroker and the man, were still negotiating, the man trying to argue the superior quality of the molars and the pawnbroker persuasively proving that teeth were really a drug in the market.

MIND SUPERSEDES INSTINCT.

How Man Has Lost Many Gifts Possessed by the Lower Animals.

If the doctrine be true that man is really the heir of all the various species and genera of the animal kingdom, it seems a little hard upon us, says the American Analyst, that even by way of exception we inherit none of the most marvelous instincts of those species and genera, and have to be content with those greater but purely human faculties by which even the most wonderful of animal instincts have been somehow extinguished. Sir John Lubbock maintains with a good deal of plausibility that there are insects, and very likely even higher animals, which perceive colors of which we have no glimpse and hear sounds which are to us inaudible. Yet we never hear of a human retina that includes in its vision those colors depending on vibrations of the other which are too slow or too rapid for our ordinary eyes, nor of a human ear which is entranced with music that to the great majority of our species is absolutely inaudible.

Again, we never hear of a human being who could perform the feat, of which we were told only recently, of a bloodhound. In a dark night it followed up for three miles the trail of a thief with whom the bloodhound could have never been in contact (he had just purloined some rolls of tan from the tanyard in which the dog was chained up), and finally sat down under the tree in which the man had taken refuge. Why, we wonder, are those finer powers for discriminating and following the track of the scent which so many of the lower animals possess entirely extinguished in man, if man be the real heir of all the various genera which show power inferior to his own?

We see no trace in animals of that high enjoyment of the finer scents which make the blossoming of the spring flowers so great a delight to human beings, and yet men are entirely destitute of that almost unerring power of tracking the path of an odor which seems to be one of the principal gifts of many quadrupeds and some birds. It is the same with the power of a dog or cat to find its way back to a home to which it is attached, but from which it has been taken by a route that it can not possibly follow on its return, even if it had the power of observing that route, which usually it has not. Nothing could be more convenient than such a power to a lost child. But no one ever heard of any child who possessed it.

Still more enviable is that instinct possessed by so many birds of crossing great tracts of land and sea without apparently any landmarks or seamarks to guide them, and of reaching a quarter of the globe which many of them have never visited before, while those who have visited it before have not visited it often enough to learn the way—at least by any rule which, in like circumstances, would be of any use to human intelligence. The migratory birds must certainly be in possession of either senses or instincts entirely beyond the range of human imagination, and yet no one ever heard of the survival of such a sense of instinct in any member of our race. It may be said, indeed, that men have either inherited or reproduced the slave-making instinct of some of the military ants, though that unfortunate and degrading instinct does not appear to have been inherited by any of the higher animals which intervene between the insects and our own race; but this only enhances the irony of our destiny, if we do, indeed, in any sense inherit from these insect artistocracies one of the most disastrous instincts of the audacious but indolent creatures which fight so much better than they work. If we have not inherited the architectural instincts of bees or beavers, nor the spinning instincts of spiders, nor the power of the dog to track out his home, it is a little sad that we should have inherited the one disastrous instinct of the ant by which it makes itself dependent on a more timid and industrious species of its own race, and thereby loses the power to help itself.

What is still more curious is that even where human beings have wholly exceptional and unheard-of powers they betray no traces of the exceptional and unheard-of powers of the races whose vital organization we are said to inherit. The occasional appearance of very rare mathematical powers, for instance, so far from being in any sense explicable from below, looks much more like inspiration from above. The calculating boy who could not even give any account of the process whereby he arrived at correct results which the educated mathematician took some time to verify, certainly was not deriving in himself any of the rare powers of the lower tribes of animals. Nor do the prodigies in music who show such marvelous power in infancy recall to us any instinct of the bird, the only musical creature except ourselves. Still less, of course, does great moral genius—the genius of a Howard or a Clarkson—suggest any reminiscence of what happens in the world of animal life.

MARRIAGE AMONG CRIMINALS.

The Most Hardened Offenders Permitted to Wed While Convicts.

It is well known that the larger part of the criminal classes are unmarried people. Some philanthropists, particularly in Europe, have time and again reiterated their belief that matrimony, with the loving responsibilities that parents assume, would redeem from lives of crime many an outcast who is now regarded as wholly irreclaimable. There is reason to believe there is more sentiment than truth in this pleasant theory. In at least one country, marriage is authorized by law between the most hardened criminals during the period of their punishment for hideous crimes. This country is the Island of New Caledonia, in the Pacific ocean, to which many hundreds of the worst offenders against society in France, including a great many women, are transported for life. It cannot be said that this matrimonial experiment is a great success.

Mr. F. Ordinaire has recently visited the convent of Bourail in New Caledonia. It is vulgarly called the "Paddock" by the male convicts because it is to this convent that they are permitted to go for the purpose of selecting wives from among the hundreds of French women who are confined there. This privilege is given them only after some years of residence on the island, when the men who have obeyed the rules of prison life are permitted to build huts outside of the prison walls, to choose wives from the convent, and to devote their future life to the care of their families.

Mr. Ordinaire interviewed the Mother Superior on this matrimonial scheme and learned that she regarded it as an utter failure so far as reformatory influences are concerned.

"Our duties her are very simple," she she said. "We have the care of the unfortunate women who are sent to us from France until they are married. When a male convict desires to take a wife he comes here, informs me of the fact, and I call all the female convicts down into the parlor, where they talk over the conditions of their union, and if the woman desires to wed the man the bans are proclaimed and the marriage takes place in church after the delay required by law. I have assisted at forty of these marriages in a single day."

"Do these marriages turn out well?"

"Alas, they do not," said the Mother Superior. "The women leave the church on the arms of their husbands and go to their new homes, but it is rare that they make these homes happy or in any way attractive. They are far more likely to descend to lower depths of depravity than to become self-respecting women. Children of these unions are if possible more degraded than their parents. In my opinion the regeneration of criminals through the family tie is a prodigious failure, and I believe that such marriages should not be countenanced, but should be prohibited by law.

The regular meeting of the uniform rank and work in the present degree of the Far West lodge will be held to-morrow evening, when a full attendance is requested.

FRANCE WON THE DAY.

A Boston Man Disgraces His Native Land, His Friends and Himself.

There were a number of us in one of the London taverns made famous by Dickens, when a great, big fellow slouched in and made himself very disagreeable with his mouth, writes a New York Sun correspondent. One of our party was a man from Boston, and some way or other he and the big man came to exchange words. The first we heard of the row the big man was saying:

"You Yankees is great on the brag, and that's all you can do."

"Well, I dunno," replied Boston.

"But I do. When did you ever do a bloomink, blasted think?"

"How about 1776?"

"Never heard of it!"

"How about 1812?"

"Never heard of it!"

"Did you ever hear of Bunker Hill?"

"I have, sir. That's where 600 redcoats licked the life out of 4,000 bragging Yankees!"

"I guess not."

"Not! Does you dare to dispute the Liverpool Kid?"

"You'd better read what history says."

"I have done that 'ere, you bloomink idiot, and it says as how all you Yankees run at the first fire! Don't it, now?"

"I never heard that it did."

"Don't it say that?"

The big fellow had pushed up his sleeves and put up his fists, and it was plain that a row was on hand. He was big enough to eat up two such men as Boston, while he had friends to look out for the rest of us. Our companion therefore took the most prudent course and acknowledged that history might say so, and probably did say so. This satisfied the big fellow, and he turned away and glared at a Frenchman, also a tourist, who had come in later. After a long stare he walked up to Crapo and shouted:

"Blast your bloomink parley vous, but we've always licked ye out of yer boots on land and sea!"

"You speak von big lie!" shouted the Frenchman, hot in a minute.

"What! Call the Liverpool Kid a liar to his face!"

"Aye! and I sall now give you von awful beeg licking!"

"Johnny" got out of his coat in a jiffy, danced around with his hands up, and to our utter astonishment the Kid went right down into his boots and slunk out of the room, having no more pluck than a hen. We sat there for five minutes before any one spoke. Then it was the Boston man, who said:

"Just think of it! I can lick six fellows like that banty Frenchman, and yet that big duffer made me swallow two wars for independence and Bunker Hill on top of them!"

A WORM THAT EATS STEEL.

Curious Investigation Undertaken by the German Government.

American Manufacturer: A worm that feeds on common steel was first brought into general notice by an article which appeared in the Cologne Gazette in June, 1885.

For some time preceding the publication of the account mentioned, the greatest consternation existed among the engineers employed on the railway at Hagen, by accidents, which always occurred at the same place, indicating that some terrible defect must exist either in the material or the construction of the rails.

The Government became interested and sent a commission to the spot for the purpose of maintaining a constant watch at the spot where the accident—one of them attended by loss of life—had occurred. It was not, however, until after six months had elapsed that the surface of the rails appeared to be corroded, as if by acid, to the extent of over 100 yards.

The rail was taken up and broken, whereupon it was found to be literally honey combed by thin, thread-like gray worms. The worm is said to be two centimeters in length and about the bigness of a common knitting needle. It is of a light gray color, and on the head it carries two little sacs or glands filled with a most powerful corrosive secretion, which is ejected every ten minutes when the little demon is lying undisturbed. The liquid when squirted upon iron renders that metal soft and spongy, and the color of rust, when it is easily and greedily devoured by the little insect. "There is no exaggeration," says the official report, "in the assertion that the creature is one of the most voracious, for it has devoured thirty-six kilogrammes of rails in a fortnight."

Fifty-eight pieces linoleums, latest designs in all widths and qualities, just arrived at John Weiler's.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER.

THE GOVERNMENT FAVORABLE TO CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

Labor Delegates Interviewing the Premier and ask for Chinese Exclusion — Sir John Macdonald Fears That Mr. Chinaman Would Retaliate, Refuses.

From our own Correspondent.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 9.—The Trades and Labor Congress concluded its session last Friday evening after an all night sitting. There was considerable debating talent in this labor parliament and every conceivable subject which could affect the welfare of the toiling millions was discussed without reserve. British Columbia had no reason to be ashamed of its representatives, and as I listened to their arguments and outspoken utterances, I could not help admiring them and feeling that the workingmen's representatives of the Province on the Pacific coast were far and away ahead of the political henchmen of Messrs. Dunsmuir & Co. So much was this the case that I ventured to remark to Mr. Salmon that I was under the impression that Mr. Dunsmuir owned the Province, and particularly the press, with the exception of the TIMES. "Yes," he said, "the time was when that was pretty nearly the case, and not very long ago, but things have changed. The new House has not assembled, but when it does, and whatever the outcome may be, it will be seen that Dunsmuir & Co. do not control the majority this time. How the independent men elected will vote when the Legislature meets is a question not yet settled, but they will not vote Dunsmuir anyway, and don't you forget it."

THE CHINESE QUESTION.

This afternoon Messrs. Bartley and Cowan, Vancouver, Salmon, Nanaimo, and several other representatives of labor from Ontario waited on Sir John Macdonald to interview him regarding the Chinese question. The delegates set forth to the Premier that the Chinese were an objectionable class of immigrants in every sense of the word. Not only on the grounds of morality but from every other reason their presence among white men was to be deplored. This was found out to be the case in the United States, and an act of exclusion was passed. The experience of the people on the Pacific coast was similar to that of the United States, and the evil called for a similar remedy. In British Columbia, the delegates pointed out, the people were of one opinion as to the exclusion of the Chinese, if the cannerymen were to be excepted. The latter desired Chinese immigration. The workmen, merchants and farmers of British Columbia were opposed to the Chinese, since their presence and habits in the Province were not only loathsome to the people generally but the little money they gained was taken away to China while they kept body and soul together on a few handfuls of rice. The resolution approving of the prohibition of the importation of Chinese into Canada, and passed by the Trades and Labor Congress, was presented to the Premier.

SIR JOHN'S REPLY.

Sir John Macdonald replied to the delegation that a tax had already been imposed on the Chinese, as the Government preferred white settlers to that of Chinamen, but in regard to their exclusion that was a question which would involve an international question, and consequently would require the sanction of the Imperial Parliament. He was afraid that even if the Canadian Parliament saw fit to pass any such law the British Parliament would oppose it. Personally he was opposed to any such legislation, in the meantime, as the possibilities of trade with China were great, and owing to the unfriendly action of the United States towards the Chinese, there was a probability of their retaliating against Uncle Sam, and therefore the benefits would be ours. On the other hand, were we to pass any such unfriendly legislation China would retaliate against us.

A CHANGE OF BASE.

The contentions of the Premier on this question are full of novelty, not to say inconsistency. In the House of Commons those who favor the obtaining of a reciprocity treaty with the United States have again and again pressed upon the First Minister's attention the fact that our unfriendly relations towards the United States would some day bring about retaliation. Amidst deafening applause from his followers on the back benches, Sir John Macdonald would metaphorically wave the British flag while he talked of our incalculable resources and scouted the idea of going hat in hand to the Yankees for anything. Hon. Geo. Foster, with more force than logic, would follow in the same strain, showing how arresting tariff walls was the great and only method of building up a nation. Now when the question of Chinese exclusion comes before the Premier he replies to the workingmen, who are only desirous of securing a part of that protection which is meted out to manufacturers, "Oh! China might retaliate." To the United States Sir John Macdonald was willing to say "Retaliate and be d——d," so long as it was the monopolist and manufacturers' interests he was conserving, but when the workingmen ask that protection to which they are entitled, and for which they have been voting for the last dozen years, the Government refuse on the ground that China might retaliate. In other words, we are asked to believe that it is the true interests of Canadians to have more concern for our trade with China than that of our next neighbors, the people of the United States. This reasoning may suit some parties, but the workingman will have none of it—I mean the workingman, not the professional agitators.

TO GUARD AGAINST EXPLOSIONS.

The delegates then presented to the Premier the following resolution passed by the Trades and Labor Congress:

"That in the opinion of this Congress the employment of Chinese laborers in mines should be prohibited by law, and a penalty of $500 for each offence be enforced against owners of all mines in which such labor is employed."

Sir John asked upon what grounds were the special objections to the employment of Chinese in mines based, and why they should be allowed to engage in one class of work and not in another.

The delegates represented that the employment of Chinese miners was a source of continuous danger to white miners, because by their ignorance and carelessness explosions of fire damp were liable to occur at any time.

The Premier, in reply, advised the delegates to prepare a full statement of their views for presentation to parliament. In doing so, he said, they would advance their cause by dealing with the matter in a calm and logical spirit, not making it out as a case of white vs. Chinese.

"But," said the delegates, "we have no means of positively proving that explosions are actually caused by Chinese, although we believe them to be."

The Premier said the best course to pursue is to carefully collect all the evidence you can upon the subject, showing, for instance, that explosions are more frequent in mines where Chinese are engaged than in those where only white labor is employed." The delegates agreed to do this.

WHAT THE OUTCOME WILL BE.

From the plain and outspoken utterances of the Premier it is evident that if there be no relaxation of the laws regulating the Chinese certainly they will not be amended with a view to decreasing the number that are daily arriving in the west, and extending their location as far east as the capital.

Beautiful Women.

The magical efforts of Wisdom's Robertine as a beautifer and preserver of the complexion have been attested by thousands of leading ladies of society and the stage. It is the only article ever discovered which gives a natural and beautiful tint to the complexion, removing tan, sunburn, freckles and all roughness of the face and arms, leaving the skin soft, smooth and velvety. All remarks on its delightfully cooling and refreshing properties, a distinction not found in any other similar article known. D. E. Campbell, agent.

ANARCHISTS AGITATED.

They Are Tired of Paying a Pension to Mesdames Parsons and Spies.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—The apostles of anarchy are agitated just now at the revolt among the members of the Pioneer Aid and Support Society, which threatens to dethrone their two goddesses, Mrs. A. R. Parsons and Mrs. C. Spies, the wife and mother, respectively, of the executed anarchists. Some time ago the Central Labor union which is the federation of the German trades' unions in this city, protested, through one of its delegates, against the further payment of the semi-monthly pensions to these women. No action was taken and the attack was renewed to-day, the Central Labor union presenting evidence that both Mrs. Spies and Mrs. Parsons were comparatively well off, owning real estate and having other sources of income. There were many hot speeches, but the vote resulted in favor of a continuance of the subsidy to the two women. The prevailing sentiment seems to be that if the names of these women, which are drawing cards for subscriptions, were stricken from the rolls, the association might as well disband, for it would no longer be able to collect assessments to pay other beneficiaries. As a result of the controversy the Central Labor union will probably withdraw from the aid association.

A FINANCIAL ENTERPRISE.

Another Building Society Organized in Victoria Yesterday.

Mr. J. Walter Weart, general manager for B.C. for the Dominion Building and Loan Association, the head officer of which is in Toronto, has been in our city for the past ten days soliciting subscriptions for shares in the capital stock of the association, and has met with such success that the following business men, Messrs. L. Milne, M.D., M.P.P., Wm. Dalby, N. Shakespeare, Wm. F. Bullen, D. R. Ker, C. S. Ballentyne, W. P. Sayward, and others, have applied for a local board charter, whose duty it is to pass on all applications for loans to members in this city.

At a meeting of the directors held in the office of Messrs. Dalby, Ballentyne & Claxton, the following gentlemen were appointed officers of the Local Board: N. Shakespeare, president; Eberts & Taylor, solicitors; F. J. Claxton, treasurer; J. W. Winnett, secretary; and Wm. Dalby, appraiser.

The capital stock of the association is $5,000,000, divided into 50,000 shares of $100 each, payable at the rate of 60c. per month.

Any person may become a member at any time by subscribing for one or more shares of stock by paying a membership fee of one dollar per share, and monthly payments of sixty cents per share, until the stock with profits reaches its par value of $100 each. The member secures the full value in cash on cancelling said certificate of stock.

Any person holding membership three months is entitled to borrow. His application for loan is submitted to the local board, which, if accepted, is forwarded to the head office, and the money will be paid in instalments as the building progresses, 25 per cent. being retained until work is completed according to plans submitted. A first mortgage is required in every case, and no more than 70 per cent. of the face value of the property when completed will be loaned.

When a member has secured his loan his payments are $15.00 per month, for 93 months, which make a total cost of carrying his loan $423 for eight years.

The office of this association will be in the office of Messrs Dalby, Ballantyne & Claxon, Yates street, where all monthly payments will be made the first of every month.

STILL ANOTHER CHARGE.

The Prosecution in Yesterday's Case Charged With Perjury.

Just one week ago yesterday, two Chinamen were fined $5 each in the police court for fighting on the streets. This case led to another case, in which two Chinamen were charged with larceny. A lot of evidence was taken, and the magistrate not being able to get anything out of the witnesses, he visited the house alleged to have been robbed and found that the prosecutor and his wife had told something that could not be relied on, and he therefore discharged the prisoners, after they had been in jail for over a week.

The case has not ended yet, however, and is not likely to do so for some time, as the men who were dismissed yesterday have now laid an information against those who prosecuted them for perjury. Those came up before E. Johnson, S. M., this morning but was remanded until to-morrow.

From what can be learned among the Chinese, who are very reticent about the matter, it appears that the rivalry is between two branches of the same society, one inclined towards Christianity and the other to their own religion.

The Amphion's Departure.

H. M. S. Amphion, when she leaves here for the Mediterranean about the first of the month, will go to Honolulu. The distance from that point to her destination is somewhat shorter via the Indian Ocean, and the route is more favorable although hotter than via the Straits of Magellan, and if left to Capt. Hulton's option will doubtless be taken.

Now Ready.

To-day there arrived the first consignment of fall goods for gentleman's clothing. They comprise a well selected stock of Scotch, French, and German goods in the latest patterns, and will be made up at reasonable figures, in a first class manner, by J. Mc. Callum, 43 Fort street.

Dates of Exhibitions.

The Delta Agricultural Society will hold its third annual exhibition at Ladner's on Tuesday, 8th inst.

The Chilliwhack fair opens to-day at Centerville and will continue to-morrow.

The New Westminster exhibition will be held on Sept. 24th, 25th and 26th.

North and south Saanich exhibition on October 9th.

The British Columbia exhibition will be held at Victoria on the 2nd, 3rd and 4th of October.

Telegraph Repairs.

Among the passengers from the Sound last evening was Jas. Wilson, Superintendent of the C. P. R telegraphs, who has been over to meet Mr. Leatch, assistant superintendent of the Pacific Postal telegraph. The latter company are stretching a line from Olympia to Port Townsend, which when completed will give Victoria direct communication with southern points. Next month a gang of men will will be put on to replace the old Puget Sound Co.'s cable between Port Townsend and Dungeness. There will be two lines on this route, one for Victoria business and the other for Port Angeles. The company intend to repair all their lines and give the district covered by them the best service possible.

Fine Fireworks.

Prof. Hand, the Hamilton pyrotechnist, is in Westminster, preparing for the display of fireworks which will be made on the last night of the exhibition. The chief feature of the display will be a piece called the "Bombardment of Alexandria," and will in fact be an imitation in fireworks of that famous naval exploit. The ships, guns, water, booming of cannon, throwing and explosion of shells, and all the other "pomp and circumstance of glorious war" will be reproduced in mimic form. The "front of battle" will extend over 100 feet. Prof. Hand is noted for the excellence of his fireworks in the east, and his engagement by Westminster is proof that the Royal City has awakened to the policy of pleasing and entertaining the people who assemble at exhibition time.

Credit to Whom Credit is Due.

With reference to a paragraph in last night's issue about the shoal discovered in first narrows, Burrard Inlet, we learn it was not located by Captain Lewis, but by Lieut. Barrett (N), assisted by Lieut. Hammond and two boats' crews of H. M. S. Amphion. The work of fixing accurately the position of the shoal and taking all the soundings represented many hours work on the 4th and 5th instant. On the 1st day Mr. Thain and Captain Gaudin, of the Douglas, were present, Captain Lewis not at all on either day, he merely calling on the senior naval officer present on the morning of the 4th, stating the report he had received re Parthia's grounding and asking if assistance could be given, which was promptly rendered. Before the Amphion left, a tracing of the result of Lieut. Barrett's labors was sent to Mr. Thain for local use to save delay in official issue of the same through the admiralty, and it is assumed that it is this tracing that has been copied in the form of blue prints, and issued by Mr. Thain, the tracing bearing the signature of Lieut. Barrett, who draughted it, and the approval of Captain Hulton.

A Tough Old Indian.

The Indian murderer Siumach has not yet been captured, and there is very little chance of his being caught, as he is an adept at woodcraft. He has a bad record. Indians who know him well say he has committed four or five murders during the last 25 years. His last murder, previous to the murder of Louis Bee, was committed about six years ago, when he is said to have killed an Indian without any apparent cause. He fled to the mountains and remained in seclusion for a whole year and then suddenly returned one day and took possession of his cabin and lived quietly until the perpetration of his last crime. Siumach is looked upon by the Indians as a very wonderful person, being able to endure the greatest hardships without apparent inconvenience; as a hunter he is without an equal, and he is an adept at making fires in the primitive manner, using two sticks and rubbing the same together until the friction ignites the wood. He is said to be without fear of man or beast, and to be possessed of a nature vicious in the extreme. It is quite evident that if only half that is told of Siumach is true, he is a fit candidate for the gallows, and should not be allowed to remain unhanged.

Minister of Customs.

A telegram to Victoria to-day states that Hon McKenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs, and party will leave Revelstoke this evening on their way to Victoria. A stop will be made at Vancouver, and it will probably be Tuesday before they arrive here.

From the West Coast.

The steamer Alert, Capt. Clarke, arrived this morning from the west coast, where she had taken Mr. W. J. Sutton's party of surveyors. The party was landed at Euculet, and will proceed to survey a large area of timber lands near there. Fowl weather, but not much wind is reported by Capt. Clarke.

Loading at Westminster.

The experiment of taking the ship Titania to Westminster to load salmon may not prove such an advantageous move after all. When it is considered that a great deal of the salmon shipped for England comes from northern canneries, the disadvantage of having to to take the northern pack to Westminster is easily seen. The handling of the fish is also the same if the ship is at New Westminster, the only advantage being the short haul, the shipments being taken from the canneries to the Royal City instead of on to Victoria.

A CLOSE SEASON.

A Reported Agreement Between the United States and Great Britain.

A rumor, coming from high authority, has reached us, to the effect that the governments of Great Britain and the United States have established a modus vivendi in respect to Behring Sea, which will have effect during next year, or until negotiations, looking to a complete settlement of the seal fishery dispute, can be carried to a satisfactory conclusion. The report states that the two governments have agreed to a close season in Behring Sea during the year 1891, by which time it is expected the question of jurisdiction and protection to the seal will be settled either by mutual agreement or by arbitration. The proposition, we are led to believe, came from the British government. The presence of the American cruiser Charleston on Puget Sound and half a dozen British men-of-war lying in Esquimalt harbor, brought forcibly to the minds of the statesmen of both nations, the terrible responsibilities of the situation and the imminent danger of an explosion that would convulse the civilized world. The decision of the United States Government, arrived at after the departure of their cutters for Behring Sea, not to make seizures this year, was a result of this agreement.

"A JOLLY GOOD FELLOW."

Lieut. Martin, Who was Married This Morning at Christ Church.

Lieutenant George Walter Howard Martin of H. M. S. Daphne, was this morning united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Alice Bennett, of New Mills, Derbyshire, England. The ceremony was performed at Christ Church Cathedral by the Rev. Arthur Beanlands. Miss Bennett arrived yesterday from England and the wedding took place at half past eleven this morning.

The bride who was attired in a handsome gray travelling dress, was given away by Commander Wood of the Daphne, and the best man was Lieut. Patterson. About one hundred ladies and gentlemen were present to witness the wedding. As the bridal party departed from the church they were showered with rice, and the cathedral chimes rang forth a merry peal. Lieut. Martin and his bride stepped into the waiting carriage, and three cheers, loud and hearty, and sincere, rent the air as he drove away to Goldstream where a few days will be whiled away by the happy pair.

On Monday the Daphne departs for New Westminster, where she will remain during the exhibition of the Agricultural society, and as Lieut. Martin is the navigating officer his presence on board will be required. Upon his return he will probably commence housekeeping, for the Daphne will remain here throughout the winter.

Lieut. Martin, familiarly known as "Awkins," chiefly because it is not his right name, is the son of the Judge Advocate of the English navy at Portsmouth. He was attired in full uniform, and upon his left breast he bore the South African medal, bestowed for distinguished service in the Zulu war in 1879. He was also present in the Shah on the occasion of the action between the Shah and Amethyst and the Peruvian ship Huascar. Lieut. Martin has much more distinguished service in the navy, but in deference to his well-known modesty we refrain from publishing it.

A large garland was suspended during the day between the fore and main-masts of the Daphne in honor of the event. The officers of the ship are very jubilant over the wedding of one of their number, and say that they will shortly call upon the lieutenant to settle the vexed question "Is marriage a failure." The TIMES sincerely trusts that in his case, at any rate, the answer will be a negative, for he is appreciated by all who know him as a "jolly good fellow."

THEY WERE FINED.

Hunters of the Schooner Ocean Belle Disobeyed Orders—Hunter's Duties.

The seal hunters of the Ocean Belle were paid to-day, the trouble between them and Captain Sieward having been adjudicated upon by Collector Milne, who after having the facts of the case decided to impose a fine of $10 each on the men for their disobedience and a $20 fine on the spokesman or ringleader.

It appears from Capt. Sieward's statement that the hunters were not asked to work in any way connected with the navigation of the vessel, or to do sailor's work. They were asked while the schooner was cruising in fine weather, to keep a lookout for seals, this being considered part of a hunter's work. This they refused to do, and in consequence trouble arose. Captain Sieward says he does not like to have trouble with the men, but fair rules and orders should be obeyed. He speaks in high terms of the hunters of this part, most of whom he says are hard working and good shipmates, but those on the Ocean Belle by their refusal to do what was asked of them, have caused trouble and expense.

We learn that Mr. Thaddeus Harper has commenced proceedings with a view of setting aside the judgment for $50,000 obtained by Mr. John Cameron, on the ground that the notes upon which judgment was secured were given when Mr. Harper was of unsound mind, in consequence of a severe accident sustained by him.

Will not Last Long.
The boot and shoe stock that is being cleared out by R. Hilbert at 74 Yates street, will not last much longer. Mr. Myers, who has charge of the store, says that the stock is pretty well broken already, and that it wont be long before it will all be cleared out. Anybody in want of bargains will do well to call and examine the stock and prices before it is all gone. s18-1w.

A Ranch and a Range.
A gentleman living on a ranch outside the city is thinking of returning to England and is offering his ranch for sale. Among other inducements to buy he mentions that in his house is a Jubilee Range which gives splendid satisfaction and heats the water through the house, for which purpose it is specially adapted. It would be worth while buying the ranch for the sake of the range, if mcleannan and mcfeely did not carry them in stock.

Prepare for Cold Weather.
Cold weather is coming and warmer clothing is quite necessary to preserve health, therefore you should act wise and save a dollar or two by having your last fall's overcoats and suits cleaned and repaired or dyed. The procession promises to be the grandest event of its kind that has ever taken place in Nanaimo. A general holiday will be given by all employers of labor throughout the city. The procession will march through the principal streets and thence proceed to the "Green," where they will be addressed by some of the leading gentlemen of the city.

Sudden Death.
A telegram was received here last evening stating that Mr. John Robertson, Canadian customs officer at Tacoma, had died suddenly yesterday at that city of heart disease. Mr. Robertson was the first Canadian officer ever employed at Tacoma in connection with the transit of bonded freight, and was installed in his office by Port Inspector Young last January. His remains will be taken charge of by friends who have been communicated with. Since Mr. Robertson's stay at Tacoma he has gained many friends, and his sudden death is deplored.

The Warspite Minstrels.
The Victoria Theatre was not so full as it should have been last evening, seeing that the entertainment given by the Warspite minstrels was in aid of two worthy institutions—the Catholic and Protestant Orphan Homes. The programme was well arranged and all hands followed it out to the fullest satisfaction of those present, whose applause was a good sign of their appreciation. Mr. Purche's performance of the part of interlocutor was up to many professionals as was also the rest of the troupe. The music by the Warspite string band was quite up to its usual high standing and was listened to eagerly by the audiance.

A Fine Block.
Lenz & Leiser's block, corner of Yates street and Commercial Alley, is fast nearing total completion, and will be ready for occupancy a few days before the contract time expires next month. McGregor & Jeeves, the builders, have fashioned a substantial structure, one of the strongest in the city. It is three story, 60 by 80 feet, the three flats will not be divided into rooms, there being no partitions. Strong posts 10 by 10 inches square, seated on solid blocks of granite support the floor, the walls of the main edifice being of extra thickness from bottom to top. The doorways and windows are finished in cut granite. The windows are large and plenty of light will be provided. There will be fourteen thousand four hundred square feet of floor space, the upper storys being reached by a powerful hydraulic elevator and wide stairs of easy slope. The building is a typical business block and marks the progress of the commercial firm that will occupy it, besides being a splendid sample of the work of Messrs. McGregor & Jeeves.

You should secure a lot in Fernwood, Beautiful residential property. Enquire of the leading estate agents.

DON'T DO IT!

DON'T dispute with your Wife when she says Cameron's goods are the only ones to buy; because she knows what she's talking about.
